

Mark von Zastrow, MD PhD

Mark is Professor of Psychiatry and Pharmacology at UCSF. He obtained MD and PhD degrees from Yale University and postdoctoral training in internal medicine, psychiatry and molecular physiology at Stanford University. His lab investigates the subcellular organization and regulation of GPCR signaling, with a particular interest in signal transduction in mammalian neurons and the cellular basis of drug addiction.